Understanding Skin Pigmentation

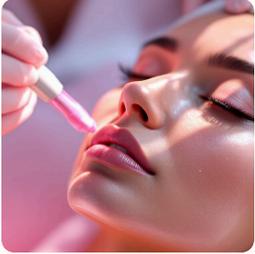

Skin pigmentation issues arise from an overproduction of melanin, often triggered by various factors:

- Sun damage and prolonged UV exposure.
- Natural aging processes.
- Post-inflammatory hyperpigmentation from acne or injuries.
- Genetic predispositions.

This leads to visible concerns like dark spots, an uneven skin tone, and a dull, lacklustre complexion. While over 150 genes influence our skin tone, external factors frequently disrupt this delicate balance, resulting in undesirable pigmentary changes.

Advanced Pigment Treatments Offered

Chemical Peels

Precisely applied solutions remove damaged outer skin layers, revealing brighter, smoother skin beneath. Ideal for refreshing and rejuvenating the complexion.

Topical Creams & Medications

Customized medicated gels, serums, and oral tablets prescribed by Dr. Sakhiya target pigmentation at a cellular level, promoting even skin tone.

Microdermabrasion

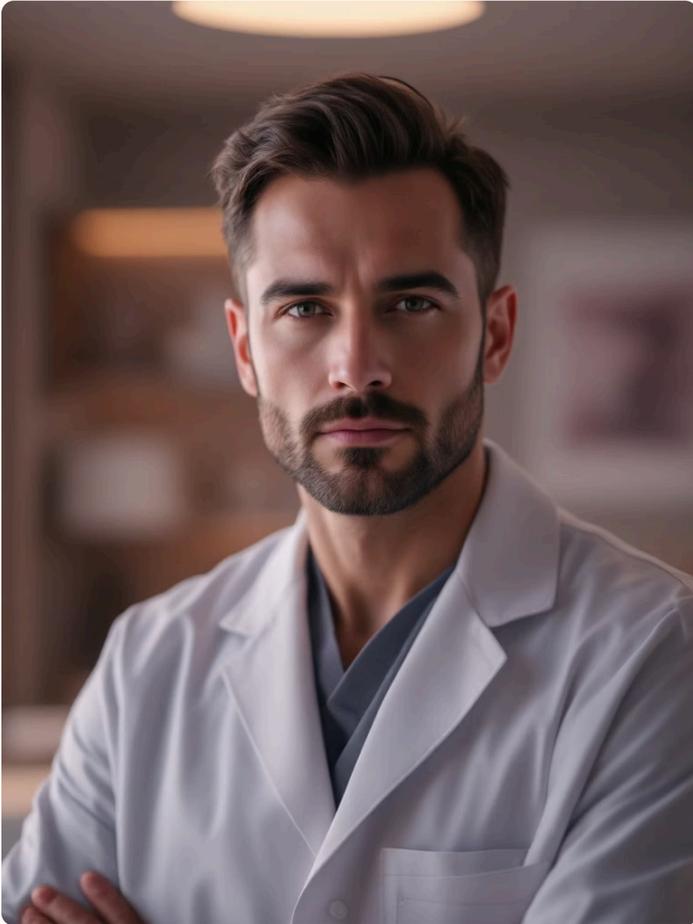

A non-invasive procedure that exfoliates dead skin cells using fine crystals, restoring an even tone with zero downtime, and promoting skin renewal.

Laser Treatments

Utilising advanced ablative and non-ablative lasers to deeply target pigmentation, stimulate collagen production, and effectively reduce even the most stubborn spots.
